

Decision Memo

JUNE 22, 2026

A personal memo on whether to stay in the US or return to China.

RECOMMENDATION

Stay in the US.

HIGH CONFIDENCE

Executive summary

Your current responses point clearly toward staying in the US. This is based on your current answers and weights rather than a fixed judgment about which path is always better.

WHY NOT THE OTHER PATH

What each path gives you, and what it asks you to accept.

Dimension	Stay in the US	Return to China
 Career Opportunity	94.4	38.9
 Salary and Cost of Living	100	41.2
 Immigration and Policy Uncertainty	88.9	44.4
 Family and Emotional Factors	88.9	44.4
 Lifestyle Preference	100	50
 Long-Term Development	100	41.2

Higher values are emphasized. Scores reflect the same dimension data used in your results.

Risks & uncertainty

Changing weights alone looks less likely to reverse the result, which suggests the current lead is not only a weighting artifact.

Next steps

- ☒ Compare one specific plan for staying in the US and one specific plan for returning to China side by side.
- ☒ Recheck the two assumptions most likely to be wrong, such as job access, actual savings outlook, or family constraints.
- ☒ If you still feel uncertain, revisit your weights after gathering more concrete information.

This is a decision-support tool, not legal, immigration, or financial advice. Your results depend on your own answers and weights, and should be treated as a structured reflection tool rather than a final verdict.

This reflects my thinking as of June 22, 2026.